

River City Bank President Scott Nanney & FOUCL Treasurer Debora Quigley

River City Bank Donation

The Friends of Union County Library (FOUCL) recently received a generous donation. River City Bank's President Scott Nanney presented a check to FOUCL Treasurer Debora Quigley in support of the collection of audiobooks and printed periodicals at Union County Public Library (UCPL).

The contribution comes at a critical time, as audiobooks - now one of the most heavily used resources in the community - have seen significant cost increases, stretching beyond UCPL's existing budget. The donation will help ensure continued access to these popular materials for residents of all ages.

In addition to digital offerings, UCPL remains unique within the Mountain Regional Library System as the only branch that continues to provide a wide selection of print periodicals. Patrons can still enjoy publications such as The Wall Street Journal, along with magazines like Money, Kiplinger's Personal Finance, and Mother Earth News.

Library visitors are encouraged to take advantage of these offerings in a welcoming and relaxing environment where anyone can catch up on current events or explore new ideas through audio and print media.

Representatives of FOUCL are deeply grateful for River City Bank's continued commitment to supporting these special resources. "These donations help preserve what makes our library such a unique and valuable place for our community," a spokesperson shared.
